Lambert Murphy Will Sing Here

When still a student at Harvard university, Lambert Murphy sang in the Old South church in Boston. His name was well known in the historic city, and he attracted no small notice by his Sunday performances. After graduation, he went to New York to accept one of the highest paid church positions in America that of tenor at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church. During this time he pursued his vocal studies and before a year had elapsed he was approached by the managers of the Metropolitan Opera company with a contract to join that great organization.

Having established an enviable position among the younger artists of the country, Murphy grew in demand for concerts and music festivals. Then it was that the largest firm of musical managers in New York contracted with the gifted tenor to manage his concert tours. Several of the big symphony orchestras availed themselves of the opportunity to secure Murphy for solo performances, and within a year more he had appeared at practically every large Spring Festival in the east and Middle West.

You will have the privilege of hearing Mr. Murphy at the Grand Opera House Thursday, October 12.

NEW YORK LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
SENATOR ROOT, in his great speech in this city, after declaring there was a general agreement that after the war America will be confronted by tariff barriers in every now belligerent country, said, "What are we going to do then? We must do something. We must protect ourselves or we shall become the dumping ground of the world and our workmen will beg in the streets. Even the Democrats have seen that something must be done, for they have provided a tariff board to ascertain and report the true facts to which a tariff law is to be applied. Now we all understand that if the country wants a tariff for revenue only they may put the making of it in the hands of the Democratic party. But can any sane man contemplate that party making a protective tariff? In the first place, they can't do it honestly. They don't believe in it. They were born and bred in a different faith."

"I Would Have Our Dwelling House Built to Last," Said Ruskin.

Mark the simplicity—"built to last!" It would be hard to find three small words in the language that say and mean as much, especially as applied either to houses or to furniture—"built to last."

The Hartley Furniture is "Life Time" Furniture.

It is furniture chosen with the greatest care. It is made of good seasoned woods, without flaws or knots—and every joint is strongly put together. The styles are the correct reproductions of famous period designs and the prices are within the reach of the most modest purse. It is only with furniture "built to last" that we can expect a growing business. The new season's furniture stock is ready. Come in and inspect it.

problem in every American home. We charge that excessive prices result, in a large measure, from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the Republican party, and from trusts and commercial conspiracies fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people without import duties on the necessities of life are materially reduced." Democratic Platform of 1912. The tariff on the necessities of life has been radically reduced so much all along the line that it has been necessary to devise all sorts of new and onerous special taxes—but the cost of living has not been reduced. It is steadily increasing. This week one of the most extensive restaurants in New York, an institution which has more than a hundred branches in this city and branches in many other cities, restaurants where the wealthy never eat, but which feed hundreds of thousands of clerks and working girls daily, has been obliged to put up its prices. All egg orders, pies and coffee have been increased 5 cents, and genuine suffering will result. This means, not that the customers of these restaurants will pay more for their meals. They haven't got it to pay. It means that they will eat less, despite the fact that many of them are under-nourished already. On every side of the cost of living is increasing by leaps and bounds and many who had gained increased wages as a result of the European war and believed they had attained some measure of prosperity, now find the increased cost of living; that they are even poorer than before.

Democratic Desperation?
Many of the wildly extravagant charges which the Democratic managers—notably Vance McCormick—are making against Gov. Hughes are doing their cause more harm than good because they are interpreted by people generally as indicating that the Democrats are growing increasingly desperate. One such charge is that Gov. Hughes is the Wall Street candidate. Mr. Hughes' record as Governor, the intense opposition of Wall Street which he incurred during the insurance investigation that first brought him to the knowledge of the general public, and his entire course as Governor, when he flatly refused to do anything whatever to gain Wall Street's good will are all so well known that it is hard to understand what Chairman McCormick hopes to gain by spreading such a canard. The enthusiastic endorsement of Mr. Hughes as a friend of labor by the official organ of the Federation of Labor in this state, also serves, indirectly, but not the less certainly, to confound the opposition in any effort they may make to fix upon Mr. Hughes the stamp of Wall Street's approval. From all sections are coming reports which clearly indicate that President Wilson son has failed to attain that support of labor for which he strove when he butted into the labor controversy and procured a material wage increase for the Brotherhoods, and the "Wall Street" candidate cry is supposed to be an outcome of that disappointment.

abolishing the old mileage. Under present conditions a trainman who makes more than the agreed limit of speed over his division has done his days work and can quit when his run is completed, regardless of how short a day it has taken him. He is paid his full mileage even should he make a run of one hundred miles, for instance, in three or four hours. Under a single time basis he could be assigned to other work for the remainder of the eight hours or whatever other day was decreed by Congress.

LAST DAY

This is the last day for $1.00 bottles of Burdock Blood Tonic at 25c at the Mountain City or Hall Drug Store.
